The Venezuelan President indicated that they are awaiting the necessary permits to send the two Covid-19 testing machines to Colombia since the only one Colombia had has failed.

Maduro also made a regional call to help the people of Ecuador in the face of the increase in confirmed cases and deaths from the pandemic, reiterating his willingness to leave behind the political differences in the current world health crisis.

"The images of Ecuador are horrifying, without a government, without support, corpses decomposing in the houses (...) We cannot turn a blind eye to what is happening in Ecuador," he said in his statements.

Repatriation of Venezuelans in the U.S.

The Venezuelan President also reiterated that he is willing and has the necessary aircraft to repatriate the nationals who are in the United States, but requires that the authorities of that country authorize the action.

Likewise, he expressed his solidarity with U.S. people as that country became the current epicenter of the pandemic.
