Havana, July 26 (RHC)-- Cuban President Miguel Díaz-Canel called to work for a better society just as those who attacked the country's second-largest military stronghold 67 years ago. The president published a photo with his wife, Lis Cuesta Peraza, in front of the Cuban flag.

Díaz-Canel recalled the events of July 26, 1953, when one hundred fighters commanded by the historical leader of the Cuban Revolution, Fidel Castro, assaulted the Moncada Barracks, in Santiago de Cuba, while another group attacked another military institution in Bayamo.

Through his Twitter account, Díaz Canel sent an embrace to the First Secretary of the Cuban Communist Party, Raúl Castro, Comandante Ramiro Valdés and other combatants who participated in those actions.

"It is a pride and an honor to defend the Homeland together with you. #SomosCuba. #SomosContinuity," said the head of state on the social network.

Díaz-Canel also stressed the need to work to move forward in the midst of today's challenges with the same will of the heroes and martyrs of the combative actions of 67 years ago.

"Let us all work to make every day of the calendar a 26th, every month of the calendar a July, every commitment a victorious Moncada," he emphasized in a message accompanied by the hashtag #SempreEs26.
