
Brazil's Bolsonaro angers ally Israel by saying Holocaust can be 'forgiven'

14/04/2019

Brazilian right-wing leader Jair Bolsonaro has risked falling out with one of his closest allies over his off-hand "We can forgive, but we cannot forget" remark about the Holocaust after it sparked a fierce backlash in Israel.

The Israeli president, as well as the official memorial to the victims of the Holocaust, have pounced on Bolsonaro, taking offense at the Brazilian leader's comments.

Addressing evangelical leaders on Thursday night in Rio de Janeiro, Bolsonaro made reference to the Holocaust as an example of a tragedy that must not be forgotten so it would never be repeated.

"We can forgive, but we cannot forget. That quote is mine. Those that forget their past are sentenced not to have a future," he said.

Also on rt.com Maduro tells Brazilian Army to resist 'fascist rookie' Bolsonaro's orders to intervene in Venezuela...

The remark struck a raw nerve in Israel, with critics zooming in on the first part of the quote.

Israeli President Reuven Rivlin accused Bolsonaro of an attempt to "erase" the extermination of Jews in Nazi camps from the public memory.

"No one will order the forgiveness of the Jewish people, and it can never be bought in the name of interests," Rivlin tweeted.

"We will never cooperate with those who deny the truth or try to erase it from memory — not by individuals and groups, not by party leaders and not by heads of state," he said.

Yad Vashem, the Israeli memorial for the victims of the Holocaust, warned Bolsonaro against sailing out of his depth and called on him to stick to present-day politics instead of wading into historical matters.

Read more Jewish group sues Brazilian cartoonist over Netanyahu & Bolsonaro 'Nazi hug' drawing

"Diplomats have the responsibility to shape the future, and historians have the responsibility to describe the past and research history. It is forbidden for one to cross the boundaries of the other," spokeswoman Dana Weiler-Polak said, while noting that it's not up to one person to decide if "the crimes of the Holocaust" warrant forgiveness.

Bolsonaro, who has styled himself as a great friend of Israel, recently opened his country's business office in Jerusalem as "part of its embassy in Israel." While the inauguration of the new diplomatic quarters fell short of Bolsonaro's earlier vow to move the country's embassy to Jerusalem, it was praised by Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, who said he hoped it was "a first step" towards the opening of a Brazilian embassy there.

During his four-day trip to Israel, Bolsonaro, dubbed "Tropical Trump" for the uncanny similarities of his views to those of his American counterpart, visited the Yad Vashem memorial.

READ MORE: Nostalgia for coups past? Brazil's Bolsonaro visits CIA before Trump on first US trip

Bolsonaro is no stranger to controversy, having praised Latin American dictators and told a female political opponent she was "not worthy" of rape. Just days after he returned from Israel, Bolsonaro faced outrage for claiming that Germany's National Socialist Party (the Nazis) was a leftist group, because its name included "socialist."

Netanyahu so far has not commented on the new controversy involving his Brazilian bedfellow. Meanwhile, the Israeli ambassador to Brazil sprung to Bolsonaro's defense, arguing that the Brazilian leader was misunderstood.

"At no point in his speech did the president show disrespect or indifference to Jewish suffering," he said in a Facebook post.

Bolsonaro's comment sent ripples through the Jewish community on Twitter. Some argued that it was up to the victims of the Holocaust to decide whether to forgive the perpetrators.

@ShushanAPN My mother's family was slaughtered, & she was made a refugee, by fascist Nazis. I am among those who may bestow forgiveness or withhold it. Bolsonaro & others who attempt to use the Holocaust to whitewash their own proto-fascism (w/ Bibi's help) are beneath contempt.

"Its perpetrators were rightfully punished and should never be forgiven. Just like the torturers you defend deserve no forgiveness," a commenter wrote, alluding to Bolsonaro's controversial remarks praising military dictators and their methods.

@certainrandom According to Bolsonaro, we "can forgive, but not forget" the holocaust. No, we cannot forgive genocide. It's perpetrators were rightfully punished and should never be forgiven. Just like the torturers you defend deserve no forgiveness.
