
Cuban artists condemn US blockade

08/10/2019

Hundreds of artists and students of art have today condemned the genocidal US blockade against Cuba, on the eve of the 52nd anniversary of Commander Ernesto Che Guevara's death in Bolivia.

From early hours in avenues and important sites of Santa Clara, artists and students are carrying out varied concerts called Supertanquero de las Artes (Supertanker of Arts), alluding to the macabre US decision to block oil tankers to reach Cuba.

In this city, which keeps the remains of Commander Guevara and his companions of the Latin American guerrillas, while settlers are getting ready to pay tribute to the 52th anniversary of Che's death in Bolivia, hundreds of artists ratify their commitment to the Cuban revolution.
