
Youth Festival in Cuba to Bring Together the Arts

24/11/2016

Havana, Nov 24 (Prensa Latina) More than 600 young creators will meet at the 9th edition of the Love In Festival, which will bring gather all the arts in the Morro-Cabana complex, according to the spokeswoman of the event, Yakiela Torres.

On Friday and Saturday, 15 different venues will simultaneously open exhibitions that will show the work made on community projects and other arts and crafts. During the event several films will be screened and conferences on sex education, electronic music and body art will be offered.

According to its organizers, the Love In Festival seeks to raise environmental awareness, sustainability and cultural diversity, basic elements in achieving social integration.

The Center for Exchange and Reference about Community Initiatives (CIERIC) and the organizing committee are proposing an integration of the community, the arts and innovative thinking in a multicultural meeting focused on the dissemination of artistic contents and values in favor of the environment and cultural development.

The Love In Festival has been established as one of the most popular festivals that promote art and culture among young people.