
Aggression on Venezuela Denounced in Spain

16/08/2017

Several political, social and solidarity Spanish organizations have denounced today the escalation of attacks against the people and government of the Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela.

In a statement spread by the Canary Bolivarian Platform, the signatory organizations have condemned the US military intervention threats on the South American country.

Miserably supported by the right-wing governments of Europe and Latin America, Donald Trump's administration seeks, violating once again the international legality, to have the charge of the homeland of Chavez and Bolivar, ignoring their sovereignty and independence, the text said.

The European organizations strongly criticized the 'demonization that the US ideological industry is currently making' on Venezuelan people and authorities.

They have stopped making journalism work on Venezuela to directly start off by making war propaganda, by trying to put in hatred to anything that smells of Bolivarian or Chavista (followers of former President Hugo Chavez) process.

The Canary Bolivarian Platform described as impudent that they present themselves as victims to the perpetrators, in reference to the violent actions promoted by opposition sectors against Constitutional President Nicolas Maduro.

'It is presented to those who are capable of using flammable liquids spraying and setting a person on fire for being Chavista, as liberators or peaceful demonstrators,' the Canary Bolivarian Platform said in reference to media manipulation.

The Bolivarian Revolution gave voice and vote to Venezuela's long-marginalized majorities, the statement said, after stating that Venezuela will never be again ruled by those who only want to benefit local oligarchies and hold global economic power.
