Chinese Ambassador to Cuba Chen Xi on Wednesday donated medical supplies as a contribution to fight the Covid-19 pandemic.

Worth about 42,500 dollars, the donation includes 6,000 N95 masks and 60,000 surgical masks.

Chen, Deputy Health Minister Luis Fernando Navarro, and the deputy chief and coordinator of the Department of International Relations of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of Cuba, attended the event at Empresa de Suministros Médicos, in eastern Havana.

The Chinese Government and some other companies have sent several donations of medical supplies to Cuba to fight the SARS-CoV-2 pandemic.
