Adalberto Alvarez is one of the Cuban musicians with greatest transcendence in the world. He is the author of iconic Latin songs such as Y que tu quieras que te den, Para bailar casino, El Toca Toca, among others. He was the founder, director, and pianist of the Cuban band Son 14 (1978), made up of important musicians who left their imprints in the quest for an own style of salsa and son —influenced by the work of other Latin American and Cuban musicians like Arsenio Rodriguez and Felix Chapotin.

He founded his current orchestra in 1984. Adalberto seeks to find new sound registers as he uses a sort of instrumental format that allows him to achieve a better rhythm, melody, and harmony. Audiences in Spain, Germany, Netherlands, and the US have given him standing ovations.

Several hits have been written by him as irrefutable proof that he is a dignified example of Cuban son. Famous artists or bands renowned worldwide such as Juan Luis Guerra, Charanga Casino, Wili Rosario, Oscar D'Leon, and Andy Montanez have versioned his songs. Adalberto has been given several national and international awards.
