Tal como afirmó el Comandante en Jefe: "En el pueblo hay muchos Camilos". Así es nuestro pueblo, así es nuestra juventud. Por eso, entre otras razones #SomosCuba y continuamos reclamando en #Cuba: #NoMasBloqueo #UnblockCuba

Havana, Oct 28 (Prensa Latina) Cuba's President Miguel Díaz-Canel remembered on Sunday Camilo Cienfuegos, 59 years after his death, by evoking a quote about the hero by the historical leader of the Revolution, Fidel Castro.

'As the Commander in Chief stated: 'Among the Cuban people there are many Camilos.' This is our people, this is our youth. For that reason, among others, #SomosCuba (We are Cuba) and we continue claiming in #Cuba: #NoMasBloqueo #UnblockCuba,' he wrote on his Twitter account @DiazCanelB.

At 59 years of his death, Cuba remembers on Sunday Camilo Cienfuegos, Commander of the Rebel Army led by Fidel Castro.

Known as 'The Hero of Yaguajay' and 'The Lord of the Vanguard,' Camilo died on October 28, 1959, when the plane on which he returned to Havana fell into the water.

His remains were never found, hence the Cuban people's tradition to bring flowers to the sea.

Born on February 6, 1932 in Havana, Cienfuegos was an expedition member of the Granma yacht, and stands out as one of the fundamental pillars of the armed heroic deed that overthrew the dictator Fulgencio Batista's tyranny.
