
Twin Blasts Kill 30 Kurdish Fighters in Syria: Human Rights Monitor

06/10/2014

"At least 30 members of the YPG and asayesh were killed when two Islamic State suicide bombers detonated their trucks at the northern entrance to Hasakeh," Syrian Observatory for Human Rights chief Rami Abdel Rahman told AFP.

The IS bombers targeted two YPG and asayesh positions including a training camp in Hasakeh, capital of the Kurdish-majority province of the same name.

Related

- Foreign Jihadists Traded for Turkish Hostages: Reports
- A Marine is First American to Die in Islamic State Campaign
- British PM Confirms 'Brutal Murder' of Alan Henning by Islamic State Group

Control of the town is split between Kurdish forces and those loyal to Syrian President Bashar al-Assad.

Monday's twin bombings came as IS fighters press their assault on the embattled Kurdish town of Kobane on the border with Turkey.

The jihadists have been trying since September 16 to conquer the town, which would complete their control over a lengthy stretch of Syria's border with Turkey.
