Damascus, Oct 1 (Prensa Latina) Residents of the Syrian province of Deir Ezzor protested Tuesday against US-backed terrorist groups that killed one person and injured seven others during an attack on Al Hol camp in Hasaka.

Demonstrators in Deir Ezzor reportedly blocked the road linking that region to Raqqa and demanded the expulsion of troops of the so-called Syrian Democratic Forces (SDF).

During the attack on Al Hol, members of the SDF repressed protests and in addition to the abovementioned fatality and wounded, they kidnapped no less than 70 refugees.

The protests include denunciations of the actions of these groups that prevent Syrian farmers from cultivating in areas of indicated zones, according to information released by the SANA agency and social networks.

In the Syrian provinces of Deir Ezzor, Hasaka and Raqqa, the SDS has the support of US troops illegally stationed in 14 military installations that continuously act against the local population.
