
Newly Argentine President-elect with team ready for transition

29/10/2019

Buenos Aires, Oct 29 (Prensa Latina) Amid the speculation of the political dossiers that will join the list of his possible cabinet, newly Argentine president-elect Alberto Fernandez already has his team for the government transition.

With a previous meeting held on Monday with outgoing President Mauricio Macri, in which both leaders, on their side, ratified the wish for an orderly transfer of power, it was reported that Frente de Todos or Front for All campaign chief Santiago Cafiero, who is rumored to be the next General Secretary of the Presidency, is among those who will participate in this phase of change.

Forty-three days after Fernandez takes office, he will also be accompanied in this process of change, according to several media, by current lawmaker Eduardo 'Wado' De Pedro, former Senator Vilma Ibarra and former Justice Minister Gustavo Beliz.

According to Diario Popular website, those chosen by the new president to carry out the transition in regards to the economy would be Matias Kulfas, former director of the National Bank, and Cecilia Todesca.

About 40 people will work on the transfer of one management to the other with an eye on the most sensitive issue, the economy, from which the pending debt of US$57 billion with the International Monetary Fund will not exempt.

On the part of the official Government, President Mauricio Macri ordered that Chief of Staff Marcos Peña, Minister of the Treasury Hernan Lacunza and Minister of Interior Rogelio Frigerio will be in charge of this task.
