
International Criminal Court receives complaint about Bolsonaro's 'crimes against humanity'

28/11/2019

The complaint states that the president incites the genocide of Brazil's indigenous communities

A complaint has been filed yesterday (Nov 27) at the International Criminal Court (ICC) against Jair Bolsonaro. The Brazilian president is being accused of "crimes against humanity" and "incitement to genocide against indigenous peoples" in Brazil. The complaint has been filed by the Arns Commission and the Human Rights Advocacy Collective.

J'ACCUSE

The ICC will decide whether to open an investigation. The complaint says that Bolsonaro incited violence against indigenous and traditional communities, weakened law enforcement, and did not react to environmental crimes in the Amazon Forest.
