

---

Posthumous new Jenni Rivera disc to go on sale Nov. 17

15/11/2014

The record company offered no further details about the production, but Rosie Rivera, the singer's sister, said last October on her Instagram account that the disc will feature songs recorded during a concert Jenni Rivera gave in Culiacan, Mexico.

Juan Rivera, brother of the late Mexican-American singer Jenni Rivera, shows the second posthumous disc made from live recordings of the last concert of the "diva of the band" in Monterrey, Mexico. EFE/File

The singer known as the "diva of the band" died in an airplane crash along with another six people in Nuevo Leon, Mexico, on Dec. 9, 2012, hours after giving her last concert in the city of Monterrey.

A year after her death, the family of the Mexican regional music artist launched "1969-Siempre, en Vivo desde Monterrey," a live recording in two parts of the singer's repertoire during that last performance.

Both discs were hits in sales and made first place on Billboard magazine's Top Latin Albums list.

---