In 1994 there were very tough moments, recalled Ortega, the hardest moments of the fight, battling Cuba alone, blocked and seeing new challenges imposed by the demise of the Soviet Union. Cuba was our reference, our stronghold, said Nicaraguan President.

Before ALBA-TCP leaders recalled the arrival of a new political landscape in Latin America, "then came the victory of the Bolivarian Revolution, thanks to the tenacity of Chavez, Chavez spirit, firmness Chavez, Lula came after then Kirchner, in 2004 came the ALBA, a Latin America that is changing, when everyone and sang to the rpm when some were awaiting the collapse of the Cuban Revolution, and even some already reneged on the Revolution. "

"From then on we have not stopped walking and I'm sure the ALBA in this America Rebelde stop to never go," stressed the president of the Central American nation member of ALBA-TCP.
