
US Congressional Delegation Visits Cuba

26/05/2015

US Democratic Senador Tom Udall arrived in Cuba, heading a congressional delegation made up of members of his party.

During their stay, the US lawmakers will meet with Cuban government officials, bussinesspeople and local leaders to discuss the ongoing process toward the reestablishment of US-Cuba diplomatic relations and bussiness opportunities in areas such as tourism and trade.

According to a press communique, meetings will focus mainly on the opening-up of the Cuban market, opportunities for American companies to participate in the planned expansion of Cuba's telecommunications sector and joint efforts toward marine conservation.
