It is believed that the man is in possession of explosive, however this information has not yet been confirmed.

Local media report the hostage taker is a middle-aged man; he's sitting cross-legged next to the hostage, who's lying face down on the ground.

The man also appears to have erected a sign with a message to law enforcement officials on a car parked near the Koombana Drive bridge. The sign reportedly says: "Release Batty Archibald CCC Report".

The Bunbury Mail newspaper says a sniper is locked on to the hostage taker, who has been reportedly speaking on the mobile phone.

Bunbury is the third largest city in Western Australia with a population over 68,000 people. It is located about 175 kilometers south-west of Perth.

The Bunbury incident follows a Perth siege in June in which five people were taken hostage by a man allegedly wielding a gun. Police freed the hostages after shooting at the 26-year old assailant, critically injuring him.
