
Aerosmith frontman asks Donald Trump to stop using song

12/10/2015

Attorneys for Tyler sent a second cease-and-desist letter to Trump's campaign committee on Saturday.

The letter says that Trump does "not have our client's permission to use Dream On" or any of Tyler's other songs, and that it "gives the false impression that he is connected with or endorses Mr Trump's presidential bid."

Tyler, who is a registered Republican, attended the GOP contenders' first debate in August.

Attorney Dina LaPolt said in a statement that the letter is not a "political" or "personal issue with Mr Trump," but it's one of permission and copyright.

Representatives for Trump did not immediately respond to request for comment.
