

---

Floyd Mayweather delights his Cuban fans as undefeated champion visits rundown gym that is a million miles from Las Vegas

14/10/2015

Mayweather has been showcasing his 'new found appreciation for all the Cuban boxers' on a recent trip to the Spanish-speaking Caribbean island, winding his way through the streets of Havana.

The undefeated champion took to Instagram to signal his presence in the country, which was typically conspicuous given his garish green socks and trademark snapback TMT hat.

Floyd Mayweather Jr hangs on a rope in the worn out boxing gym in Cuba during a recent trip to Havana

The undefeated champion is surrounded by an excited crowd who have been made aware of his presence

Mayweather posted a photo of him surrounded by enthusiastic children and beaming bystanders as he and his super-sized entourage plodded their way around town.

Former Cuban boxer Jorge Hernandez escorted the 38-year-old during his five-hour stay on the island, taking him to the iconic Rafael Trejo gym after having visited the Morro Cabana fortress across Havana Bay.