
Rock Band Bon Jovi Returns to its Usual Style

15/08/2016

Followers of the American rock band Bon Jovi hallucinate today with the new album of study of the group, which first topic resounds already in digital platforms. The single developed recently is entitled "This house is not for sale", as the phonogram that will go on sale on October 21 and with which they hope to refresh the initial style of the original formation of New Jersey.

In fact, the video for the initial topic recreates with nostalgic airs a trip of return in which the leader and vocalist Bon Jovi visits several houses that meant something for him, nevertheless they appear now with sale cartels.

With the publication of the new topic, the band moves forward to its followers the main of the new material after the announcement realized in social networks to summer beginnings where they were revealing that the new badge published by Island/UMG, was finished.

In its musical history, Bon Jovi has sold more 130 million álbumes and has offered more than two thousand 800 concerts in 50 countries.

For the 14th record, from 1983, Hugh McDonald and Phil X aligned David Bryan, Costa Rican Tico Towers, therefore this production will be the first one without the collaboration of the guitarist Richie Sambora, who left the band in 2014.
